Synopsis of Talk

The Government established the National Cyber Security Policy (NCSP) in 2006. The policy seeks to ensure that the Critical National Information Infrastructure (CNII) covering 10 sectors namely Information and Communications, Banking and Finance, National Defense and Security, Government, Emergency Services, Energy, Transportation, Water, Health, Food and Agriculture, are being adequately protected from cyber threats. The talk will give an overview of the programs and activities that have been implemented and that are being planned. Members working or involved in the 10 CNII sectors would benefit with a better understanding of the policy and the issues and challenges surrounding its implementation. This understanding will enable decision makers in these sectors on the correct approach to comply to the policy.

Note: Background information on the NCSP can be found in MOSTI and NITC's websites.
