SYNOPSIS

Today business in the engineering sector is not good and some consensus believe that remaining in the wage earning position is better than trying to be an entrepreneur doing business, How about if an engineer who use to be a wage earner suddenly lose his job? Situation may take a drastic change and for survival, one has to look at options. The talk covers the challenges of an entrepreneur (engineer) and offers some options that may be taken into consideration. The speaker spent a substantial time in government service and later crossed over to become an entrepreneur. Some of the thoughts presented may be useful.
