SYNOPSIS

Nowadays, honesty in business dealings and everyday life does not seem to be at the forefront of people’s minds. Many lament the loss of ethics in working relationship. Most ethical lapses seem small and unimportant. However, they may keep piling up over time and become worse and end up damaging. External parties may lose trust. Be aware of how we conduct ourselves with third parties and consider the consequences. One should also consider the difference between “behaving ethically” and “behaving lawfully”.
