Synopsis

This seminar explores the critical processes of testing and commissioning that ensure engineering projects meet performance, safety, and compliance standards. Participants will gain insights into effective project management strategies, practical case studies, and industry best practices that drive successful delivery. Designed for engineers, project managers, and technical professionals, the session provides a comprehensive overview of methodologies to enhance efficiency, minimize risks, and achieve excellence in project execution.

Speaker's Biodata

Mr Wong Fook Kee is a seasoned mechanical engineer with over 40 years of industry experience, specializing in HVAC systems, mechanical assemblies, and industrial maintenance. He has served as a technical trainer and consultant for various engineering firms and vocational institutions across Malaysia. Known for his practical teaching style and deep field knowledge, Mr. Wong has mentored hundreds of engineers and technicians in areas such as fluid handling, power transmission, and fault diagnosis. He is actively involved in professional development programs and is committed to elevating engineering standards through hands-on training and continuous learning.
